STORY

Stand-up comedy duo, “Boso Swimmers”, is still waiting for the break after 12 years. Both of them have avoided talking about the future of the duo until now when they find themselves being 30-year olds. They are serious about stand-up comedy, and it's now or never. They want to make changes somehow, so they start an exchange diary to improve communication and to bring out real intentions. Starring Atsushi Ito (“Densha Otoko (TV)”) and Keisuke Koide (“Rookies”). The two have appeared in many topical works, and this is a must see of the two talented actors playing opposite each other.

They have pursued the dream for 12 years to make the audience laugh as a duo. Should they continue chasing the dream, or should they give up? The way the duo cares for each other and goes after their dream in the cash-strapped and yet strict world of comedians, and the decision to give up their dream for the sake of valued friendships, especially in an era of stagnation, will bring tears to many viewers.
